Background

Longtime state and local public official known for policy successes in gun control, Israel, and emergency management

Involved in politics at a young age, Moskowitz worked for Vice President Al Gore while in college at George Washington University; later worked on several campaigns for Democratic candidates in Florida

In 2006, Moskowitz was a member of Parkland, Florida's city commission while a law student at Nova Southeastern University; internally chosen to be Vice Mayor that same year

Served as a 2008 presidential elector for soon-to-be President Barack Obama; ran for the Florida House of Representatives in 2012 and served for six years, primarily working on issues related to law enforcement and Israel

Appointed by Gov. Ron DeSantis (R-FL) as director of emergency management in 2019, and held the position through the COVID-19 pandemic; notably obtained increased disaster aid funding for hurricane planning and recovery, and defended the integrity of Florida's pandemic data during its questioning by a former state employee

Shortly after joining the Broward County Commission in 2022, Moskowitz launched a congressional campaign to replace retiring incumbent Rep. Ted Deutch (D-FL)
